

United States Torpedo Boat Destroyers in Contest for Championship

Prof. Fournet of Montpellier in a recent lecture on the respect that practitioners should have for human life, related the story of Desgenettes' efforts to save the well known, but falling again as it is told by Desgenettes himself.

When the French were about to evacuate Jaffa the question arose what was to be done with the plague-stricken soldiers in the hospital. Desgenettes says: "Shortly before the raising of the siege—that is to say, on the 27th—Gen. Bonaparte sent for me very early in the morning to his tent, where he was alone with his chief of the staff. After a few remarks as to the sanitary condition, he said to me, 'If I were you I should end at once the sufferings of those stricken with plague and should end the dangers which they threaten us by giving them opium.'"

"If answered simply, 'My duty is to preserve life.' Then the general de-

"He pointed out to me that he believed anyone else, charged with conservation of the army, and consequently with this duty, would never have been so sick as falling all over the scumblers of the Tanks. I did not seek," he went on, "to overcome your repugnance, but I believe I find some who will better appreciate my intentions." Desgenettes goes on to say that opium was a matter of fact given to some 30 patients.

It happened, however, that a certain number rejected it by vomiting, relieved, got well and told what happened. The story has been told in various ways, and the fact of poisoning of the sick soldiers has been accepted by the authorities of Naps and denied by the defenders of memory. Desgenettes' narrative is the stamp of truth.

Exhibition of Road Building.

At the time of the State Road Convention in Milwaukee on September 12th, the State Geological Survey will have under construction a model macadam road such as would be built on a country highway. They have been granted the use of some of the best modern road machinery by the manufacturers, and expert operators will be in charge. It is likely that they will arrange to have the stone crushed right on the grounds so that the whole operation of road building from start to finish can be observed.

With expert road builders in charge of the work willing to answer questions and explain why each particular thing is done just as it is, every one who attends should leave with a clearer definite idea of practical road building.

It will be of interest to those who are going to the convention to know that Mr. John M. Stahl, president of the Farmers National Congress, has promised to be present and take part. The native interest that the farmers throughout the state are taking in this Good Roads Convention, speaks well for the future of road building in our state. It seems that all that is needed is a chance to make a start to get most of them interested and arouse a determination to make the roads a source of as much pride as the fine farms for which the state is so noted.

A Long Service.

Stevens Point Journal: Twenty-four years ago last Thursday (June 25, 1883) Judge of Grand Rapids was appointed by Gov. Rusk judge of the Seventh Judicial circuit, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of G. F. Park of this city. Judge Webb has been on the bench ever since, having been elected at each succeeding term without opposition. He is probably the oldest judge in the state both in years and in time of continuous service. During all of this time he has been an indefatigable worker. He has not only kept the business of his own circuit well along, but he has been many times called to other circuits to preside at the trial of important cases. A large amount of business has also been brought into his circuit by changes of venue; so it has often happened that while others were taking vacations he has been kept at work. And certain it is that he has always enjoyed in equal degree the respect and confidence of the bar and the many litigants who have from time to time come before him for a judicial settlement of their differences. He is not only learned in the law but he is also a man of fine character, and his decisions are without fault or error, according to the law as it interprets it. What "Judge Webb" has done for the state is a long and honorable record. A few of his decisions are appended from and of those that are a very small part of the record of the supreme court. He is an honor alike to the judiciary and to the profession of which he is a member.

THE HORSEMAN

Horses seldom suffer from decayed teeth, but because of the upper teeth closing on the lower ones a little on the outside points sometimes are formed which inactivate the block or pendulum, preventing the proper mastication of food, annoying the horse so that he falls away very rapidly. To prevent sore shoulders of working horses H. E. Cook recommends perfectly fitting collars, fitted to the shoulders by working the horse in them after a thorough soaking of the collars. He would avoid sweat pads under all circumstances, except where they become absolutely necessary because of lack of properly fitting collars.

One of the most important items in the welfare of a horse is a plentiful supply of pure, fresh water. Water should be given the first thing in the morning, and it should be offered the last thing at night when the final round of the day is made. Enough the food to eat early. A few ground oats and bran with a little milk is a desirable ration. The food will not take much at first, but will soon show a readiness for hearty meals. In the early part of the season it will always pay to allow the food to soak some time during the forenoon and also in the afternoon, giving the mare a drink and a few cats to eat while the food is soaking. It will benefit both the mare and the foal. (John Gardhouse, Ontario.)

Young Boys Must not Smoke.

In the future all boys under the age of 16 years, who smoke cigars, tobacco or cigarettes or who chew tobacco, will be liable for arrest and prosecution for the violation of the state law prohibiting the practice. Those who permit them to smoke on their premises are subject to the same danger, unless the boys are in company with the parent or guardian.

The penalty for this offense will be a fine of not more than $10 or imprisonment in the county jail for a period not to exceed 30 days.

Any person permitting the smoking of cigars, cigarettes or tobacco in any form by a boy under 16 years, not in the company of his parents or guardian, for the first offense shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10 and for a second offense by a fine of not more than $25 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days.

Bovine Tuberculosis Exhibits.

The agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin and the State Live Stock Sanitary Board are planning to give a series of tuberculosis exhibits at the various county fairs this fall. The demonstration will consist of a post mortem exhibit together with lectures upon the methods of disinfection, means of prevention, manner of applying tuberculin test and methods of eradication tuberculosis in infected herds. The first demonstration will be given in Spring Green, Aug. 29, when five animals which have reacted to the tuberculin test will be killed and examined for diseased tissues. These animals come from a herd out of which 27 of the 50 reacted to the test. The second demonstration will be held at the State Fair at Milwaukee, Sept. 11. It is expected that much good will result from this work, particularly in regions where little or no tuberculin testing has heretofore been done.

It is a pleasure to buy Furniture and carpets at our store for we have the stock and a good large room to show it. Our stock and prices are always the lowest. J. M. Ragan, Spafford & Cole building East Side.

SOAKING STOCK FOOD.

Some Hints For Breeders by Professor Thomas Shaw.

Food is seldom soaked for horses. In the true sense of soaking it is probably never thus prepared. But when horses are worked hard it has in many instances been found profitable to chaff the hay and grind the grain and to mix the grain with a sufficient quantity of water. When horses are on short allowance for time to eat they can take more food in a given time than if the food were given in the ordinary way.

It is also best to mix occasionally as a mash that is, water is poured on it, frequently hot, and the mass is stirred so that it all becomes moist. This preparation of the food is the more readily eaten by horses, and the influence of the moisture is also probably more helpful because of the moisture than if the mass had been fed dry.

Food is seldom soaked for cattle. The chief exception is corn. It is not soaked when thus prepared for the horse, but because of certain advantages that arise from the soaking of the feed, when corn is given very dry, especially on the cold and is fed to cattle for a long term of feeding it is liable to produce scours of the month. When this result follows they are charged about with producing the scours, but it is not so. It is the fact that the corn soaked in water for a few days before feeding it and do not produce more gas than when fed dry. Cattle not only masticate food well while masticating, but the fluids are abundant with which it comes in contact in mastication and also in the various processes of digestion.

Sheep do not require soaked food. In fact, it would be more or less deleterious to them. They have an almost marvelous power of masticating food, so that it can be completely digested. Nearly all if not indeed all the small animals are greatly improved by feeding by soaking them. In some instances, when the weather will admit of it, they may be soaked for at least three days. Usually, however, they are further improved by grinding and also by soaking subsequently. When this preparation they are more readily consumed, and the amount of gas produced is less. It is also impossible in the winter to feed whole grain other than corn to sheep well advanced in growth and to breed sows when scattered on a hard and clean feeding place. If fed in a trough it will be consumed as quickly that much of it will escape digestion. Professor Thomas Shaw.

Fertilizing Value of Food.

In fertilizing the value of the manure is usually set off against the cost of labor. The fertilizing value of a ton of clover hay at present prices for nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash is estimated at about $7. With the grain fed the fertilizing value varies, but it is less with those that are heavily nitrogenous. Of the feed over 90 per cent is distributed up on the land in the manure. Professor D. W. My, Kentucky Experiment Station.

The Wisconsin State Fish Commission accompanied by Governor Davidson and Lieut. Gov. Connor, have just finished a trip through the state for the purpose of selecting a suitable location for a new fish hatchery which will soon be established. They have about decided to locate the new hatchery on the White river near Waubesa, which is deemed the best location in the state, as it is visited by thousands of fishermen each year, and the waters here are ideal for this purpose.

Marshfield Times.—Fond du Lac Commonweal.—I. O. Hubbard of Grand Rapids, who is the principal of the Fond du Lac high school elected to fill the place caused by the resignation of Miss Elizabeth Waters, was here Tuesday making arrangements for his residence here. Mr. Hubbard expects to move to Fond du Lac to make his permanent home in about a week. He secured a residence today. Mr. Hubbard is a very pleasant gentleman to meet and he comes here highly recommended. He has been principal of the Grand Rapids high school for five years. The city schools will open two weeks from Monday.

You'll have all you can do to pay for your own indiscretion. Some day one very dear to you may fall the prison doors may open to a son or a daughter. When a home is in mourning over a tragedy, the best thing you can do is to keep your mouth shut unless you can say something that will come as a rift in the clouds. Then again you know that you may do no better than your neighbor; the only difference is that your neighbor was caught and you, up to date, have kept the sunlight away. Be charitable, for you know not what day or what hour the blight will appear in your own circle.

Eczema.—For the good of those suffering with eczema or other skin trouble, I wish to say, my wife had some eczema of the kind and after using the doctor's remedy and after some time concluded to try Chamberlain's Salve, and it proved to be better than anything she had tried. Ready for the Crowds.

The State Fair grounds at Milwaukee never looked more beautiful or the buildings more imposing than at the present time. Wisconsin people will be amazed at the improvements that have been made. The mammoth new cattle barn, capable of holding 800 head of cattle is nearing completion. Its immense size is beyond description. Cattle farmers will be astonished over the accommodations it will provide for the cattle exhibit, which will be unusually large and fine. The educational building is a beautiful structure and will be particularly attractive. The state fish commission will have its exhibit in this building. The new sheep judging pavilion will also be very popular with sheep exhibitors. The dining hall facilities have been very materially increased; all of the old buildings have been repainted and the grand stand enlarged. Altogether the Wisconsin State Fair is better equipped than any other fair to receive and display a monstrous exhibit in all departments. The fair opens Monday, Sept. 9th, and closes Friday, Sept. 13th.

Fight Potato Blight.

Spraying experiments for the prevention of early blight of potatoes now being carried on in Waubesa, Waubesa, and Burnett counties by the department of Horticulture of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture are progressing nicely. While indications thus far show that the blight is present in the fields in these districts, it is somewhat early to predict what damage will result, as the progress of the disease depends largely upon weather conditions. Wet weather alternating with hot periods is favorable to the development of the blight. From indications so far, the potato beetle is not as numerous in the state as last year. The present indications are for an average crop.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Drops, The Heart or The Kidneys. These are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. The Result of your ailment is not The Cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—menstrual weakness, always. And the Heart, and the Kidneys as well, have these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or coming, indigestion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Wood Co. Drug Co.

New York—It was a grueling race when 10 United States torpedo boat destroyers, each 210 miles long, sped from the Chesapeake bay to the mouth of the Hudson river in the annual United States Torpedo Boat Destroyer Race. The boats, each 210 miles long, were built in the same year, long, low, olive-colored hulls, each with a single funnel rising aft, the power of 4,000 horses in each hull and 75 men working each. It was the swiftest and longest competition of war craft in any seas.

The fleet of ten destroyers followed the coast of the Chesapeake bay and headed for the starting point of the race, the lightship. The wind was fresh, 20 miles an hour, from the west-southwest, with a lumpy sea rolling from the Chesapeake bay. EDDY HEARING ENDS REASONS FOR DESERTIONS

Washington.—The annual report of Maj. Gen. A. W. Greely, commanding the northern division of the army, which includes the desertions of the army, the lack of canteen and the low standard and general worthlessness of recruits.

The moral deterioration of the recruits is characterized as a corollary of the small pay given men. Gen. Greely urges increase of pay of officers and men, a five per cent. increase of enlisted men, and the abolition of the canteen.

Former Senator William E. Chandler, senior senator, announced to the board of officers that they had filed a motion with the superior court to dismiss their action.

The suit was brought on the ground that Mrs. Eddy, being incompetent, on account of age and infirmities, to manage her own affairs, was the victim of persons associated with her in Christian Science work, who were named as defendants in the equity suit.

ON THE TRAIL AMERICA

PORT ARTHUR NOW COAST GUARDIAN

Port Arthur, Manchuria. Port Arthur is now a coast guardian. The Japanese have taken over the port, and the entire Liaoning peninsula now is a coast guardian.

The investigation of religious conditions may find Japanese Christianity here of a specially significant type. And he will also notice the lack of idols, shrines and temples that confront one in every turn of the island.

Discussing camp instructions and post school, the Japanese do not seem to have a tendency to over education, by books and lectures, but as regards officers and enlisted men.

Gen. Greely holds that the army ration, while excellent in quality and doubtless of sufficient nutritive value, in quantity and variety does not satisfy the Japanese soldier. When not supplemented, through supplies from gardens, just exchange profits, etc., it furnishes only a meager, monotonous diet.

Shaw Reassures; THEN WARNS. Sees No Cause for Financial Trouble Unless People Want It. New York.—With the immense source of national wealth unimpaired, said Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, there is no logical reason for serious financial conditions.

The real source of the people's wealth have not been affected," he said, "and the ability of industrial concerns to pay dividends is not measured by the market price of their stocks. Logical reasons for serious conditions are therefore wanting.

Mr. Taft talks at Columbus. Makes "Political Confession of Faith" is for Tariff Revision. Columbus, O.—William Taft, secretary of war, made what he was pleased to term his "political confession of faith" at Memorial hall Monday night. Mr. Taft made no formal announcement of his presidential candidacy, but he was introduced by Gov. Harris as the next president of the United States.

BY DRUMB & SUTOR. GRAND RAPIDS, WISCONSIN. Pelicans has banished absolute, but King Leopold remains. A Brooklyn man became deaf while using the telephone. Lots of us would like to. Dr Isaac K. Funk says that crime is like smallpox. Are you vaccinated against burglary? A woman out in Kansas has hatched on 1,300 chickens already this year, but can she love them all? China wants the extradition act modified, but can it show any effective navy by way of argument? The coal supply will last 200 years, at least, according to statisticians. That's another worry of our minds. Since Maria Correll disapproves of men so seriously, they may have to be exterminated to spare her poor nerves. An Indiana judge has decided that a woman constitutes an unlawful disturbance of the peace, and she probably sleeps near a jail partition. A New York banker is having a glass house built, then breaking all records in the desire for publicity that affects rich New York people. Doing good to others, says Mr. Rockwell, brings the greatest happiness in this world. Kindly notice that he does not say "doing others good."

His Speech at Provincetown Indicates There Will Be No Countermarch In Campaign to Punish Wrongdoers.

Provincetown, Mass., President Roosevelt delivered an address here Tuesday afternoon in celebration of the centennial of the landing of the pilgrims on the American continent. After he had paid a lofty tribute to the forefathers, Mr. Roosevelt turned to the question of checking corporate abuses and made it evident that there is to be no countermarch in the government's attempt to punish wrongdoers, no matter what their personal and financial station in life.

There was reticence in the chief executive's address, however, of the determination of the authorities that no legitimate business interests are to suffer and that the only ones who have cause to fear are the breakers of the law.

Innocent Will Not Suffer.

In its main policy, while firm in the purposes expressed on other occasions, the president's speech was reassuring to those who have feared that in the general scheme of Mr. Roosevelt's policies the innocent might be involved with the guilty.

Mr. Roosevelt gave his direct sanction to a national incorporation law for concerns doing an interstate business, saying that it is his belief that such corporations can be controlled by the federal government under the interstate commerce clause, and, if necessary, under the post roads clause of the constitution.

An earnest word was spoken for legislation which will conserve the rights and interests of wage earners employed by corporations engaged in interstate commerce. Mr. Roosevelt said that the law must be passed which will limit the hours of work of railway employees was not strong enough. It must be strengthened.

For Strong Employers' Liability Law. Declaration was made that a more far-reaching and thorough-going employers' liability law must be passed, one which will not be restricted to limiting the hours of work of railway employees was not strong enough. It must be strengthened.

Touching the matter of reevevships for trusts that are guilty of wrongdoing, Mr. Roosevelt said that the decision to do something effective, and that "however, when we take action against the trusts, which work inquiry we are acting in the interest of every man of property who acts decently and fair by his fellows, and we are strengthening the hands of those who propose fearlessly to defend property against all unjust attacks."

Disaster in Socialistic Panacea.

Concerning individualism and socialism, the president said: "It will be highly disastrous if we permit ourselves to be misled by the pleas of those who see in an unrestricted individualism the all-potent panacea for social evils, but it will be even more disastrous if we permit ourselves to be misled by the pleas of those who see in a socialistic system which would destroy all individualism, which would root out the fiber of our whole citizenship."

An echo of his recent "unadvised etching" pronouncement is to be found in this passage: "There is unfortunately a certain number of our fellow countrymen who seem to accept the view that unless a man can be proved guilty of some particular crime he shall be counted a good citizen, no matter how serious the life crime he may be guilty of. This is a matter of public safety, and it is a matter of public safety that we must be guided by the facts of the case, and not by the pleas of those who see in a socialistic system which would destroy all individualism, which would root out the fiber of our whole citizenship."

Supervise Railways Like Banks.

In touching upon the railroads the president declared: "The national government should supervise the railroads like banks, and control similar to that which is now exercised over national banks. We can do this only by proceeding farther along the line marked out by recent national legislation."

Pope Remains Firm in Italy.

Rome.—An important communication has been issued by the Vatican, which is destined to arouse widespread controversy. It affirms that those who have interpreted, whether in thought or action, the pope's general policy toward the world as one of non-interference in any ministry or political group, are strongly mistaken. It adds that the Vatican does not need to change its policy, whatever attitude the Italian government chooses to assume.

Durability of Timber.

In tropical countries, like Mexico and India, the belief is common that timber is more durable if cut when the moon is on the wane, and, in explanation it has been alleged that the sap rises and falls as the moon waxes and wanes. Durability tests in India have been inconclusive. As the matter is of much practical importance and the difference in durability is so widely accepted as a fact, it is urged that a systematic and carefully planned series of experiments be made to settle the question.

Public Health Laws.

Concerning laws for the public health Mr. Roosevelt said: "I also hope that there will be legislation increasing the power of the national government to deal with certain matters concerning the health of our people everywhere, the federal authorities, for instance, should join with all the state authorities in war against the dreadful scourge of tuberculosis. Your own state government, here in Massachusetts, deserves high praise for the action it has taken in these public health matters during the last few years; and in this, as in some other matters, I hope to see the national government stand abreast of the foremost state governments."

AMONG CRANBERRY MEN.

CRANBERRY EXPERIMENT STATION NOTES.

By E. H. Hardenberg and O. G. Malhe.

Fight on for Cranberries.

Hyannis, Aug. 12.—Cape Cod's cranberry crop, in the opinion of the leading growers whom the Globe reporter has interviewed, will be at least 25 per cent less this season than it was last year. This is accounted for by the late cold weather of the early summer and the continued drought of the past two months.

There is not a bog on Cape Cod, in the opinion of the growers, that has not suffered more or less damage on account of the drought, and if the dry spell continues much longer many of the bogs will lose their entire crop this season.

L. B. Godfrey of Mashpee, a leading grower and an acknowledged expert in the culture of cranberries, states that the crop in Mashpee will be far below what it was last year, and he attributes the great falling off to the drought.

Mr. Godfrey has visited a great number of bogs in this vicinity within the past two weeks, and he found that practically the same conditions existed here as in Mashpee, that the drought had seriously affected the growth of the cranberries, and the berries will be small and the yield will be small.

Howard Swift of East Falmouth, one of the biggest growers in the county, says that he looks for a small crop this season, and that he has found from investigation that the whole crop will be a small one. He hopes for good prices, which usually follow a small crop on Cape Cod.

Some of the big bogs between here and Mashpee are showing up pretty well, and one of the growers, and a few will have about an average crop, but on the whole the crop will be less than last year by at least 25 percent.

John H. Crocker of Falmouth, a leading grower, will have a good crop this season, but he says the crop all along the line will be less than it was last season.

There is much speculation as to how the growers will rally to the support of the sales company which was organized last year to handle the Cape Cod cranberries, instead of sending the berries to commission houses as has been the custom since the industry was started over half a hundred years ago.

By allowing the sales company to handle their crops the growers hope to get better prices for the berries, and to keep the prices from being cut by controlling the total crop.

The sales company, so the members say, has secured the promise of the majority of the growers in Barnstable and Plymouth counties, and they expect to handle at least 90 percent of the total crop this year.

The commission merchants who have been flocking to Cape Cod in the fall for the past half-dozen years with the money in their pockets to purchase the berries, have been sending out circulars to all the growers during the past week saying that they were still in the ring and would be on Cape Cod in ample season and ready to offer the highest cash prices for the cranberries.

It looks like a little war this season between the commission men and the sales company, and some of the growers are wondering just how the matter will terminate.

The beginning of the harvesting season on Cape Cod will be a little late this year, the growers say, and it is doubtful if any of the berries are gathered before the second week of September. On some of the new bogs the berries may ripen earlier, but the real work will not begin until Sept. 7. That will allow about six weeks for harvesting the total crop, which under usual conditions is a sufficient length of time.

Experiment Station Notes. The cranberries have developed rapidly the past week and by Sept. 1 should be of good size.

The unseasonably cool nights the past week seemed to have little effect on the growth of the cranberries, and seemed to promote coloring somewhat.

Growers should bear in mind the fact that at this season of the year, they are not only bringing to maturity the present crop, but that the setting of buds on the uprights is now going on very rapidly and next year's crop is "in the making," so speak. That dry conditions favor fruiting, and wet conditions favor vegetative growth, is a quite well established fact; and from this fact we may deduce the parallel; that vines on bogs that are kept comparatively dry the four or five weeks will have a much better chance to set more heavily with fruit buds for next year, than will the vines on bogs where water is held high and the vegetative growth of the present season has a chance to continue later while the fruit buds will be forming later and under less favorable conditions.

Growers can prove this on their own bogs if they will go out and take a few observations now and make note of the dry and wet parts of the bog; then continuing making notes next year until the crop is harvested.

CRANBERRY HISTORY.

How and by whom the industry was first started.

At North Dennis on Cape Cod in Massachusetts, about 1816, one Henry Hall owned a piece of low land on which wild cranberries grew. Adjoining this were beach knolls, from which, after cutting of the small timber, the sand was blown over the vines. This, instead of injuring the berries, of which he had made some use, were found to greatly improve them, as they sprang up through the higher parts of the sand covering; and this is believed to have originated the idea so fundamental to their successful cultivation. So little was this first tried even at its best, that it was many years before any considerable use was made of this accidental discovery.
